Dedication

'When I was a King and a Mason,—a Master proven and skilled—
I cleared me ground for a palace, such as a King should build.
I decreed and dug down to my levels. Presently, under the silt,
I came on the wreck of a palace, such as a King had built.

There was no worth in the fashion—there was no wit in the plan—
Hither and thither, aimless, the ruined footings ran—
Masonry, brute, mishandled, but carven on every stone:
"After me cometh a Builder. Tell him I too have known."

When I was a King and a Builder, in the open noon of my pride,
Then sent a word from the darkness, they took me, called me aside,
They said, "Thy aim is forbidden." They said, "Thy use is fulfilled,
And thy palace shall stand as that other's, the spoil of a king who shall build."

I called my men from my quarries, my derricks, my wharves, and my shears:
All I had built I abandoned to the faith of the faithless years,—
Only I carved on the timber, only I hewed on the stone,
"After me cometh a Builder. Tell him I too have known."'

To Our Alma Mater

Here's to Bates, our Alma Mater dear,
Proudest and fairest of her peers,
We pledge to her our loyalty,
Our faith and our honor thru the years.
Long may her praises resound,
Long may her sons exalt her name,
May her glory shine while time endures,
Here's to our Alma Mater's fame.

We have seen her battles bravely fought,
Prowess and pluck upon the field.
We have known defeat and victory;
Bates men were never known to yield.
Here's to the Garnet—Hurrah!
Here's to the pluck that shall not fail,
To our Bates and all she means to us,
Here's to our Alma Mater—Hail!

Annie Stanton Marston

"Annie"

She was as one favored of the gods.

Walter Ellwyn Mathews

"Walt"

What means this furrowed brow, this look of care?
'Tis not hard study that oppresses him;
Nor social duties: for he has no share
In such. 'Tis "the Eternal feminine."

Louisa Moulton

"Squeezie"

There was a little girl and she had a little curl
Right in her pompadour.
And when she was good, she was very, very good,
And when she was bad she would sting you to the core.

Ambrose Jennings Nichols

"Nick"

A little man of quiet, studious mind
But when he lets off steam 'twere hard to find
A worse. You'd think old Nick were on your track.

Class History

Ye who believe that Bates is the only school in existence ;
Ye who believe in the spirit that roots for the class and is loyal ;
Ye to whom X double I is the sign and symbol of glory—
List to this word in the praise of the class that made Lewiston famous.
In the old days long ago, ere Prexy had graded the campus,
When the brick walls of the Forum had barely begun to mount upward
Unto those dizzy heights to which they were destined—when Blue Laws
Had never been known in the land, and all was peace and contentment
Arrived at the College a Class, and a Class with a capital letter.
We've been every year since then, the leading class in the college,
Altho in athletics perhaps, 'twould depend on which way you were going
Whether we stood at the head of the list or sat at the bottom,
For we've had a grip on last place that you couldn't unclinch with a crowbar—
Excepting in track, where sometimes we've taken a brace and done better.
But when you come to brains—there's 1912 with the bells on !
Debaters and poets and teachers and parsons, in truth, by the dozen ;
And as a musical bunch we've probably never been equalled.
Most of the orchestra, band, and about three-thirds of the glee club
Belong to the garnet and gray, and blend their voices in praises
That, thru mistake, they didn't get into '13 or '11.
Many the other achievements which space forbids us to mention—
Many more are our virtues, among which stands modesty foremost ;
But we must part with that, because we soon shall be Seniors,
Writing our qualifications to those who we hope will employ us—
Yea, even Seniors erelong—indeed, we are told that already
Two or three of the fellows have sent in their measure for halos ;—
And we're all doing our best to learn by example and precept
How to "trun out our chests" and go about looking important
So that next year, perhaps, we'll have more to put upon record.

Class History

Then when the Class of '13 came trailing over the campus,
Even the College Professors bent forward to watch the invasion,
Gazed on the low-bent heads of those who would shine in their classes,
Gazed on the long, straight limbs of the boys who would run for their college,
Noticed the steady eyes and the earnest purpose within them,
Counted the moving ranks and noted the numbers with gladness.
We, because of our class, the old college traditions behind us,
And for the love of those who watch all our efforts with interest,
Thru the long months that have passed since just as a throng of invaders,
We, of the red and the green came trailing over the campus,
Down till the present day, have tried our best to be useful;
And who can truthfully say that we've no excuse for existence?
Last year on May the fourteenth, when Garcelon Field was crowded,
Athletes and Cheering Men from every other Maine campus,
Selfishly promised themselves that Bates should be given the fourth place.
This we refused to hear, and bravely our boys for the garnet,
Raced 'round the track, and vaulted the pole and the hammer they threw with the strongest.
Then, when the day was over, Bates had attained second honors.
Space is not given on this page to tell of our other achievements;
We, who in spite of "thirteen" have brought good luck to the college.
Basketball, football and track and baseball have lent us distinction.
Here's to the two years to come before we shall take our departure,
Here's to the good we may do, the renown we may win thru our labors.
Here's to the dearest of all, the college where we are the Sophomores.

Class History

ON SEPTEMBER 21, 1910, a swarm of college students was seen hurrying toward Hathorn Hall. At first glance, there was nothing unusual in this sight. A close observer, however, could read in many faces ill-concealed hesitancy and anxiety, ——and then he could pick out the Freshmen. The Sophomores also could be recognized, but not by their hesitation and anxiety! They glanced eagerly toward the new students, and their intent, sinister expressions boded no good for the entering class. In spite of the Sophomores' evident hostility, however, 1914 flourished. Though she was beaten in the Freshmen-Sophomore baseball game, her men played so well that a number have since been chosen to aid in the work of winning athletic honors for Bates. Naturally her spirits were somewhat dampened by this defeat, but she revived sufficiently to enjoy thoroughly the class ride given by Professor Stanton. In basketball and track work, the victory fell to the Sophomores, but 1914 made an excellent showing in both. 1913, however, was not always successful. One Sophomore, at least, can testify that it is not at all safe to disturb Freshmen who are being entertained by fair hostesses. These same hostesses can testify that even flowers, beautiful pinks, are not sufficient to soothe the wound of a Sophomore suffering from the ignominy of an inglorious defeat received at the hands of a Freshman. May this history now close with a fitting tribute to those of the class who, some on account of weak, inferior horsemanship, some for other reasons, have fallen by the wayside.

Eurosophian Society

EUROSOPHIAN Society was founded February 17, 1869. It is, therefore the oldest of the three literary societies. It is also at present the smallest in numbers. The character of the society is similar to that of the other two, save that Eurosophia offers particular attractions to those interested in music. During the last four years the College Orchestra has been composed largely of Eurosophians. The society also claims her share of the members of the other musical organizations.

The society color is dark purple, and the motto Κάλλιστα Διζήμεθα.

Among all the happy memories of our days in Eurosophia two events stand out with especial vividness. The first of these events is the dedication of Libbey Forum on October 1, 1909, which marked the removal of the society from the old Eurosophian room in Hathorn Hall to the more fitting quarters provided in the new building; the second is the society banquet given on March 5, 1910 in New Odd Fellows Hall, Auburn.

The purpose of the society is two fold; first, to encourage literary work of all kinds; debating, reading, criticism, giving the opportunity for every member to improve whatever talent he may have; second, to furnish some measure of social life, to aid in establishing those friendships that mean so much hereafter.

The ideal of Eurosophia, however imperfectly it has been realized, is, as her motto proclaims, the best, the most beautiful, the highest.

Polymnia Society

POLYMNIA believes in high-class work, hard work, and democracy. Her programs for the year have been high-class and instructive, mostly literary, but varied occasionally by a novelty program. One feature of the year's work has been a contest series of meetings conducted by the Seniors and Sophomores vs. the Juniors and Freshmen, with faculty judges. This has been very successful. About thirty new members have been received during the year and the members of Polymnia feel justly proud of the steady progress of their society.

Piaerian Society

PIAERIA stands for training along both literary and cultural lines. She believes that ease and freedom both in public speech and appearance can be had only through constant drill and practise. In view of this she offers serious and helpful training to all who are desirous of availing themselves of the opportunities. She believes that its aim of preparing people for the greater struggles of life can be attained only by making the members themselves responsible for efficient programs. Piaeria has boasted of debaters in the past and she will in the future unless she departs from her present policy.

WITH THE sole determination to help one another live better lives, ten London clerks banded themselves together into the first Young Men's Christian Association, nearly seventy years ago. This same motive has actuated our own Association for the twenty-three years since it was founded. The degree of success that has been attained is manifested in the high and noble Christian character of those who have felt its influence and gone out to wider fields of service. The part it has had in shaping our lives during our course has been to supplement the intellectual and the physical training in working toward full-rounded manhood.

During the past year work has been conducted along various lines. Before college opened in the fall representatives of the Association were on the ground to greet the new men and to offer any assistance and direction necessary. A further welcome was given at the Freshman Reception in Fiske Reception Room, Rand Hall. The jovial informality of the Hallowe'en Social demonstrated the fact that the work of the association is not confined to the regular Wednesday evening meetings. Masqueraders in costumes that defied description, made the evening one pleasant to recall.

The enrollment in the courses of systematic Bible-study for the first semester, and Mission-study for the second semester fully justified the efforts put forth in those departments.

Speakers from outside the College have brought new stimulus into our weekly religious meetings at times. That which has exerted a lasting influence over our lives, has been the inspiration that has come when we have met together week after week with a fellow-student as leader, and enjoyed the free exchange of thought that makes for high ideals and the upbuilding of Christian character.

The occasion of the Maine Intercollegiate Y. M. C. A. Conference at Bates on February 17-19, 1911 was perhaps the greatest single event in the history of our association. The best Christian men from the Maine Colleges and Preparatory Schools ate with us, slept with us and enjoyed with us the privilege of hearing the ablest Christian leaders in the country. The great burst of enthusiasm expressed at the Conference Banquet in cheers, songs and applause will echo and re-echo through our minds whenever we recall that happy event.

Never did the true Bates spirit manifest itself more than was demonstrated by the whole student body in the reception and entertainment of the delegates and in the financial backing of our association. The Bates students made many pleasant acquaintances among their guests, and these in turn, expressed their gratitude for the hospitality they had enjoyed.

The membership of the Association includes more than a hundred men. Its influence is not confined to these, however, but through them in a great measure permeates the whole student life as one of the strongest factors for good at Bates.

OUR Y. M. C. A. is represented every year at the Northfield Student Conference. No Mohammedan's life is complete without a pilgrimage to Mecca; neither is a College man's course complete without a trip to Northfield. The lasting influence upon him, and upon the college association through him, is ample compensation for all the time, trouble and money expended.

The conferences are held on the wide, sloping campus of Northfield Seminary, which together with Mt. Hermon School just across the river, stands as a lasting memorial of Dwight L. Moody. The pine-clad slopes of the Northfield hills and the beautiful valley through which winds the broad Connecticut river, make it a most attractive recreation ground.

Last year Bates sent a delegation as large as all those from the other Maine colleges together. Their tent was pitched at the end of the pine woods bordering the campus, not far from one of the large dormitories. Camp life there with all the privileges of hearing and coming into personal contact with the greatest Christian workers of England and America, with opportunities for recreation in the form of baseball, tennis, track athletics, swimming, "hikes," and rest, made the ten days spent at Northfield a pleasant and profitable occasion.

The celebration of Fourth of July and the Canadians' Dominion Day together gave a chance for all the pent up college spirits to "cut loose." Dr. Ross of London gave a patriotic address in the auditorium which was decorated with the flags of all nations and the banners of the thirty-five universities and colleges represented at the Conference. Each delegation gave its song and cheer and did its "stunt." After the meeting, all rushed out to the bonfire. As the flames leaped into the air from the huge pile, cheer after cheer went up from the crowd, and the boys in strange costumes danced about the field with banners making a weird sight, and one not soon to be forgotten.

AS WE girls look back over our college course, and the various things that have contributed to our profit and pleasure, we shall think sometimes of the Christian Association and what it has meant to us, not alone in spiritual uplift, but in good times and pleasant companionships, as well. We shall remember the receptions on Mt. David and in Fiske Hall, where, as frightened freshmen, we met the upper class students and the faculty, and where, in the succeeding three years, we in our turn first became acquainted with other Freshmen. We shall remember the classes for Bible and Mission study, the prayer meetings and the cabinet meetings in which we have come so closely in touch with one another's deeper natures. Above all, those of us who were fortunate enough to go to Silver Bay will never, never forget that beautiful spot on the shores of Lake George, that was filled with inspiration and happiness.

THIS ORGANIZATION is an outgrowth of the class in advanced English Composition, conducted by the late Prof. A. Keith Spofford, and bears his name, as a tribute to his work and ideals. Altho our class cannot be said to be responsible for its inception, yet, we can, without egotism, claim the Club as one of our children; for ten out of the thirteen charter members were from the ranks of 1911.

Bi-monthly meetings are held in Roger Williams Hall for the study of literary principles and the criticism of undergraduate work in letters. Each member is required to contribute a certain amount of work, as well as his quota of friendly criticism.

During the past year the club has been favored by the presence in its ranks of Mr. Salim Y. Alkazin of Old Orchard, Maine, a young Syrian of marked ability along literary lines.

IN THE spring of 1910, eight members of the present Senior Class organized a society for the development of scientific work, named in honor of Prof. Jordan, The Jordan Scientific Society. Membership was limited to those men of the Senior and Junior classes who have shown marked ability and proficiency in work in the Sciences. At the bi-monthly meeting, original papers from the departments of Science have been presented with experimental work.

It has been the aim of the society to enable students anticipating graduate work in medicine, engineering, or any Science, to begin their advanced study with a training and a broader view of the other departments as well as of their own specialty. For those contemplating teaching the Society has been a most valuable asset. Various branches of Industrial Chemistry, Engineering, Applied Biology, and Astronomy, together with reports from The American Scientific Society, were taken up. These being entirely outside the scope of the classroom, every member is fitted to be a more intelligent and thorough instructor in the Sciences.

Visits to industrial plants have proven of value. The three lectures given by Profs. Cram and Coplin of Bowdoin, and Prof. Whitehorne were enjoyed by a large number of students. Every member of the Society has derived great benefit and training from the first year's work. The movement has been particularly opportune with the erection of a new Science Building. It promises to be an organization of great utility to the College.

BATES vs. NEW YORK CITY COLLEGE TEAM

Debating

WHEN as freshmen we listened to our first intercollegiate debate, we classed the participants with old time heroes like Cicero or Mark Antony. This admiration accounts for the enthusiasm with which we entered upon the Sophomore argumentation course. Even the girls took debating.

The severest blow we received in this course was when we were forbidden to refute the other man's argument by saying "T'aint so."

The process of elimination went on. The members of the prize divisions delivered their unanswerable arguments to a chapel full of pews.

Then came the Sophomore champion debate. Mathews, Stordahl, Hillman, Harris, Preston and Pierce were the contestants. Pierce won the individual prize and the proud title of champion debater of the class.

The first really great event in our career as debaters came soon after, when we met the University of Maine Sophomores in City Hall, Lewiston. Our team, composed of Stordahl, Preston and Pierce, was victorious. This Sophomore year was marvelous to us and our victory over Maine made us feel that we were real "argumentators."

But the next year fate was "agin us," for we met defeat at the hands of Clark, in Worcester. This was our first real intercollegiate debate and the defeat cast a shadow over our Junior year. Our team against Clark was Mathews, Stordahl and Pierce.

The opening of our Senior year was marked by many heated oratorical efforts which were loosed in Roger Williams Hall. The result was two grave and dignified Seniors, two careless but congenial Juniors, and one broad-minded but youthful instructor, bending their heads together in the dusty archives of Coram Library. When this solemn conclave had completed its encyclopedia of new and unknown facts on Canadian Reciprocity, the first battle took place. Stordahl, Pierce and Turner '12 met and defeated Clark in Chapel Hall at Bates. This wiped out the former defeat and added a victory to the record of Bates.

One month later Stordahl, Pierce and Davis '12 were victorious over a team representing the College of the City of New York, in New York.

Thus we have added one defeat and two victories to our college record, and 1911 has won four Drew medals.

We have spent many hours grinding over big books; we have lost recitations and some sleep, but we are proud to have served our Alma Mater, and to have laid two trophies at her feet.

AS THE MIRROR attempts to reflect the life of our class thru the four years of our College Course, so for thirty-seven years the Bates Student has tried to mirror faithfully the various phases of College life. Each class in turn supplies the editorial board, chosen for their proficiency in literary work as well as for their grade of scholarship. Each board endeavors to outdo the preceding one, in making the magazine a helpful and truly representative publication.

The selected members of the Class of 1911 were Walter James Graham, Editor-in Chief; Freeman Pell Clason, Local Editor; Irving Hill Blake, Literary Editor; Miss Elizabeth Frances Ingersoll, Assistant in the Literary Department; and Misses Rita May Cox and Gulie Annette Wyman, Exchange and Alumni Editors, respectively. Four assistants to Mr. Clason were chosen from the two lower classes; namely, Ray Allan Clement and Clara May Purington from 1912, with George Hinckley Emmons and Dora Maude Norton from 1913. Lawrence Wilson Damon was the Business Manager.

The Student is steadily improving in size and quality, as it should to keep pace with the growing College. It would seem that the day cannot be far in the future when our body of nearly five hundred students will support a weekly as well as a monthly publication. May we leave as a suggestion for the board of 1912 or 1913, that the Local and Literary departments be divided; the former to become material for a weekly paper, the latter to remain as now, the monthly magazine.

Bates College Musical Association

President, Clair E. Turner, '12
Vice-President, Edward H. Fuller, '12
Secretary, Paul M. Yeaton, '12

ALTHOUGH the Bates College Musical Association is new, and still rich in possibilities, it has already proved itself worth while by the impetus which it has given to musical activities. Its object is to promote interest in all lines of music, by bringing the men of the different musical clubs together in a common fellowship, and presenting to them the various needs of the different departments.

Any man is eligible for membership who has taken part in one public performance of any club. Each club has its own management, but the right to wear the association letters is awarded by the association to members who have earned them in the different departments of Band, Orchestra, Glee, and Mandolin Clubs. The appearance of the varsity musical hat has been, in itself, a great stimulus to musical life in the college.

Under excellent management and leadership, and with the hearty support of every man, each department of the Association has enjoyed a prosperous season, and we feel confident that in the future Bates will continue to have the best musical clubs in the state, both in organization and efficiency.

Mandolin and Glee Clubs

NEVER since their organization have the Musical Clubs of the College attained to such a high degree of success as in the past season. Under the management of L. S. Smith, '12 and the leadership of F. H. Kierstead, '12 very efficient work has been done.

Twenty-seven concerts were given in different parts of the New England States. In this State the Clubs visited Lisbon, Lisbon Falls, Gardiner, Saco, Auburn (three concerts), and Lewiston (two concerts). In New Hampshire: Rochester, Berlin, Littleton, Whitefield, Woodsville, Plymouth, Laconia, Tilton and Manchester. In Vermont: Barre. In Massachusetts: Merrimac, Haverhill, Roxbury, Cohassett, Greenfield and Shelburne Falls. In Connecticut: Stafford and Stafford Springs. Everywhere the clubs have been enthusiastically received.

The Glee Club has been coached by Mr. Stanton, and it is due largely to his efficient work that the clubs have met with such good success. F. H. Kierstead, '12 has been leader this year and deserves much credit for the way in which he has kept the boys working.

The Mandolin Club has been the best this year that has ever represented the college. Under the leadership of G. E. Brunner, '12 the club has worked hard and certainly has won a good name for itself. The club has used the Gibson mandolins exclusively, a fact which is true of no other college club in America.

The Bates College Band

IT HAS been said that "Music hath charms to soothe the savage breast." Whether this is true or not, there is no doubt but that music has the power to inspire and enthuse. For this reason, most colleges and universities now have their own bands. What is more inspiring to a football man, or in fact to any athlete in the moment when the supreme test comes, than to have the band strike up the familiar college song? Many athletes confess that this very thing alone has helped them at critical times to put their last ounce of energy into the contest.

Bates has the reputation of being among the leaders in every line of activity and in the music line she has lived up to her reputation. For several years Bates has had a college band, the efficiency of which, of course, has varied with the material available. However, during the last three years Bates has maintained a band which compares favorably with any other college band in New England.

It is customary for the band to play at all important home games of football and baseball, and each year several trips are taken with the different athletic teams.

The size of the band varies each year, but for the past two years, since the band has been under the Musical Association, the average has been about twenty-five pieces. Rehearsals are held each week and are quite regularly attended.

Bates men are and ought to be proud of their band, for few institutions in the country, with the same number of students, can boast of one that can compare with the Bates College Band.

College Orchestra

FOR MANY YEARS Bates has maintained a College Orchestra. Like the other musical organizations, its efficiency has varied with the talent available. The Literary Societies have had orchestras of their own, larger or smaller as the case might be. These have added in efficiency and numbers to the College Orchestra. This has consisted of from five to seven pieces, though on several occasions the number has been increased to fifteen. Music of high quality has been furnished at most of the College functions as well as at many outside of the College.

FEELING the need of an organization in which the girls might spend some time in the study and enjoyment of music under a good leader, the Girls' Glee Club was formed in the fall of 1910. Dr. Brandelle very kindly offered to serve as leader. He is an earnest student of music and through his delicate appreciation of it has been able, in some degree, to bring the girls to a realization of the opportunities in good music.

Miss Lillian Randlett, '11 was chosen manager of the club and Miss Amy Weeks, '13 as pianist the first year, and Miss Edith Pemberton, '11 this year. During the Winter and Spring about thirty-five girls, chosen by the leader from the four classes, worked diligently upon the cantata, "Cinderella" and several other selections. In May, their efforts were rewarded by being able to give a very successful concert. Also a recital was given one afternoon at the Free Baptist Church.

This year the Club has been working upon a beautiful cantata, "Herald of Spring," and in May gave its annual concert. Although a new organization, good results have been acquired and still greater successes are anticipated for the coming years.

THE GIRLS' Mandolin Club, which was organized in 1910, has had another successful year. Miss Lura Howard, '11 was chosen manager, and Miss Irene Chandler, '11 leader. Under their direction, weekly rehearsals were held from which much pleasure and profit was derived. This year for the first time, the Mandolin Club assisted the Glee Club in the annual concert, and contributed much toward its success. They have furnished music several times for the girls' dancing parties in Rand Hall, and have played at the Literary Societies and other social events. The Mandolin Club bids fair to become a permanent and successful organization in the college.

IN THIS branch of sport, Bates has always been feared by her opponents. In the course of the last few years, the team has been taught the "open style" of play which no other team in Maine seemed to master. Probably no student realizes the fact that Bates was one of the first if not the first of the colleges in the country to use the shift plays. Players and coaches worked with enterprising zeal and the result was to be seen in intricate trick plays, bewildering forward passes, accurate punts and short kicks, the careful banding of punts and the many possible fakes from kicking formation. By these means, Bates always was looked upon to spring some surprise which opponents carefully looked for. The one great handicap was in the lack of weight. Oftentimes Bates would swamp the opponents in the art of football only to be slowly beaten down by excessive weight. Still, under this strain, the players displayed dauntless courage and gave up all their strength to bring victory to their "Alma Mater."

The fall of 1907 saw us beaten by Colby 6-0; tied by Maine 6-6; and beaten by Bowdoin 6-5. Not an excellent showing but one that all opponents admired because of the speed and skill of our players.

The next fall brought better results. Colby was victorious in a 6-0 contest—a defeat which was really a tie. Maine beat us 6-0 in a hard fought battle. Bowdoin was defeated at Brunswick in probably the best football game ever played in Maine, 5-0; not because Bates carried off the garlands of victory, but because of the smoothness of team play of the Bates team, the wonderful shift plays which took Bowdoin off her feet, and the kicking and handling of punts.

In our Junior year, Bates had a very light but plucky eleven. In the first half we generally outplayed our opponents only to have excessive weight down us in the last half. Colby beat us 11-3 in Lewiston. Maine won 15-6 at Orono after Bates was leading at the end of the first half. Bowdoin also won 6-0, scoring in the last few minutes of play.

The Fall of 1910 saw Bates defeat Maine 10-0 at Lewiston. That victory was hard fought and won on its merits. Bates supporters were over jubilant at this success over Maine, who came down to what they supposed would be a sure victory. Bowdoin vs. Bates was a tie game 6-6. The teams were evenly matched and both teams showed their alertness by scoring their points on the mistakes of the other. Colby and Bates did not meet because a satisfactory date could not be arranged.

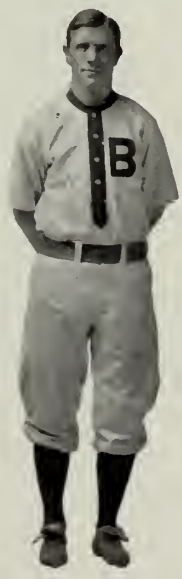
THE SEASONS of '08, '09 and '10 have seen Bates with excellent ball teams. Victory has not always come her way, but Bates students realized that to every game played to a finish there had to be a winner and a loser. The players fought hard and determinedly, and their quickness to learn, their earnestness and their concentration enabled them to play together and to gain the knowledge of "inside" playing. Inspiration of self-confidence moved the players to rally strongly at the moments wherein opportunity presented itself. Coaches and captains have been competent and experienced men who instructed and developed the teams in the rudiments of the game and who devised the systems of play which are so essential in the making of a winning team. Bates was always a dangerous contender for the championship during these three years. Never did she fall below second place. The four colleges in the state were evenly matched and only after a hard struggle, lasting until the game was finished, could any college claim victory. The rivalry was always intense, and in but few cases were good fellowship and sportsmanship broken.

In our Freshman year, with a team consisting mostly of experienced men, we fought bravely but hopelessly for the pennant. We were just lacking championship form on account of the indifferent showing of our pitchers. Victory came in both Colby games—3-2 and 10-1. Maine beat us 4-2 at Lewiston and Bates trimmed Maine at Orono 6-5 in an eleven inning game. Our greatest rival, Bowdoin, showed her superiority over us by defeating us in both games, 5-2 in eleven innings, and 10-3 in nine.

The next year Colby was beaten after two hard struggles, both games ending 2-1. Maine defeated us 4-2 and 3-2. The last named contest went 16 innings, it being the most exciting and nerve-straining game ever played on Garcelon field. The teams were very nearly equal to one another. Harriman pitched a remarkable game and stood the strain in a praiseworthy manner. Bowdoin lost 8-0 and won 8-6.



Captain Keaney

The season of 1910 was a favorable one, as Bates defeated Bowdoin three times—a feat which very few colleges can boast of. The scores were 5-2, 5-4 and 7-6. Maine won both games from us 8-4 and 5-0. Colby was beaten 8-7 in the only game played with her.

"1911" furnished Macomber (1st b), F. Clason (r.f), and Keaney (s.s.) for the 'Varsity team. These players acquitted themselves nobly and what the class lacked in numbers they made up in speed. Besides these Carroll, Damon, C. Clason and Lombard were able substitutes on the team and when given a chance they acquitted themselves nobly.

The members of the class feel justly proud of their class baseball teams. Our freshman team was a winner with that "stone-wall" infield and "fleet-footed" outfield. The almost invincible "sophs" were trimmed to the tune of 2-1. In our Sophomore year we downed the Freshman team 8-7 in a contest in which our class showed the nerve they are made of by winning out in a heart-breaking finish 8-7. The class players were Mahoney, Gorden, C. Clason, F. Clason, Lovely, Damon, McKenney, Quincy, McKusick, Parle, Lombard, Macomber, Richardson, Howard, Carroll and Keaney.

TRACK ATHLETICS at Bates has made giant strides the last four years. In that short time our team has done so nobly that a mere 15 points in the M. I. A. A. meet has been increased to 37 points. With such an excellent showing the future is very bright for us in that branch of sport.

In the spring of 1908, the team's point winners at Brunswick in the M. I. A. A. Meet were Capt. Fraser in the hurdles, Schumacher in the shot put, Williams in the sprints and French in the hammer throw. The team that year was coached by O'Donnell of Boston.

Next spring a new coach was engaged and success has been greater and greater each year. He has worked untiringly with our students, encouraging and exhorting them in their work and we all know the result. He developed Blanchard in the hurdles and the latter defeated all the other competitors in the high hurdles, breaking the Maine record. Williams was tied for the high jump at 5 ft. 8 in. and this is also a new record.

In May 1910, the annual meet between Maine colleges was again held, this time in Lewiston. It was the fastest and best meet ever held in the State. Bowdoin won out with 49 points; Bates came second with 37; Maine third with 28; and Colby last with 12. Bates scored the largest number of points she had ever scored and surprised everyone. Holden of Bates won the half mile in 1.56 2-5 seconds, beating the New England record by 2 3-5 seconds. Captain Williams won the 100 and 220 yard dashes in remarkable fast time. In the 440 yard dash, Brown of Bates finished second.

Captain Blanchard

In the high hurdles, Blanchard ran a speedy race in the fast time of 16 1-5 seconds. Woodman, another Bates man finished second. In the low hurdles Blanchard got second place. Gove won the shot put with an actual put of 39 ft. 1 1-2 in.; Shepard was second.

A dual meet with Colby was also held in 1910, Bates winning 11 firsts and tieing for another. This showing and the showing at the M. I. A. A. speaks in glowing terms for our coach. At present Coach O'Connor has a wonderful track team for a small college like Bates. With four men that can average 53 seconds in the 440; with the fastest half-miler in New England: with two shot-putters who can average around 40 feet; with two discus throwers; with two broad jumpers who can jump 21 feet; with two excellent hurdlers, and with two hammer-throwers, Bates can give any minor college a great battle in a dual meet.

Let us all hope for success this year in the M. I. A. A. and N. E. meets. The boys deserve success, for they have trained faithfully and their one aim is to bring victory home from Waterville.

The class of 1911 had such track men as Mahoney, Leavitt, Preston, Lovely, Peakes, Richardson, Andrews, Mathews, Dunfield, and Keaney. While Peakes and Andrews were the only men who received the 'B,' still the other men were good workers and our class relay team captured the championship in the Indoor Meet in 1910.

BASKETBALL HAS been a popular sport for the members of the class of 1911 during the winter months. The result has been that 1911 was always represented by a successful team. While Freshmen, the Faculty would not allow us to play the Sophomores. The boys were disappointed, as they were confident of victory. A few games were played with outside teams with varying success.

The annual Sophomore-Freshman game was played on Washington's Birthday. The Sophs, the class of 1911, were speedy and accurate in throwing baskets. Capt. Bishop was a tower of strength and led his team to victory by the score of 33-26. The other players—McKusick, Lombard, Lovely, Quincy, Richardson and Keaney did noble work and backed up their captain in grand style.

THE 1911 GIRLS have upheld the name of the class in athletics fully as well as the boys. They have annexed two championships, a feat which every member feels proud of, as it showed that the girls had practised hard and had acquired great team work. The Freshman and Sophomore years, the team was beaten because of lack of experience. At that, they won two games each year and lost one. In the Junior year the team was at its best, and this accurate shooting and excellent passing proved deadly to their opponents. 1913 was beaten 41-4; 1912, 35-0; and in the final game to decide the championship, 1911 defeated 1910, 18-14 after five minutes overtime. In March 1911, the Senior girls easily won again. The girls had a celebration after the final game and eight senior girls in all sorts of costumes led the march in the gymnasium. It was a fitting climax to a most successful team. Enthusiasm ran high and every member of the class had a gay time. Miss Howard was Captain and played l. f.; Miss McKee, r. f.; Miss Dwyer, j. c.; Miss Curtis, s. c.; Miss Lowe, l. g. and Miss Clifford, r. g. Every girl played her position as it should be played. The backs covered up their opponents in good style, the centres passed to the forwards in an unerring manner and the forwards scored many a difficult goal.

TENNIS IS beginning to win its way as one of the most popular sports in college. Of late years the number of candidates has increased, and as a result the tennis department has been well represented. It has been customary to have an inter-class tournament each year during the fall term. In these our class has taken its share of the victories. The Clason brothers won the college championship in doubles the first two years, and qualified for the finals the last two years, when the tournament was called off on account of inclement weather.

In June of our Freshman year, Capt. Campbell, Wadleigh, Boothby, and Tuttle represented the college in the tournament of the Maine Intercollegiate Lawn Tennis Association at Orono. Altho they did not win their way into the finals, they made an excellent showing.

The following year Capt. Boothby and Wadleigh gained second place in the doubles. Jackson and Peterson made up the other team.

The next year Capt. Jackson, Bolster, Moulton, Peasley, C. R. Clason, and Woodman represented the college in the tournament with Massachusetts Agricultural College, which was won by the representatives of the latter institution. In the Maine intercollegiate contests, Bates, in spite of the brave efforts of her men, succeeded in qualifying only one team for the semi-finals.

Captain Clason

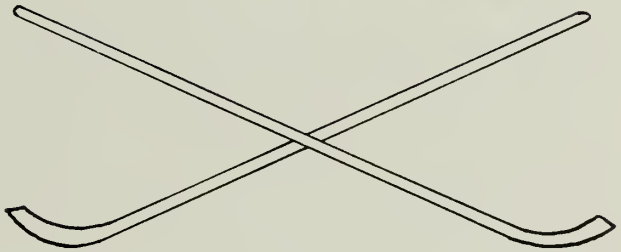
In nineteen hundred eleven, an athletic team representing Bates won the only undisputed Maine intercollegiate championship for the college during our four years' course, when Capt. "Chick" Clason and Harry Woodman '13 brought back from Brunswick the big silver cup offered by the Maine Intercollegiate Lawn Tennis Association to the winners in doubles. In order that there might be no doubt in regard to the college which was to possess this prize, Freem Clason and Robert Tomblen '14 settled the question by walking off with the second place in doubles. Captain Clason and Woodman also won their way into the semi-finals in singles.

Thus Nineteen Eleven possesses the almost unique distinction of holding three tennis "Bs" in her ranks, Manager Whipple having been awarded his letter at the end of the Junior year, and has every reason to feel proud of the efforts made by her representatives in collegiate tennis. We hope that future classes may at least equal us in their offerings of tennis trophies to our Alma Mater.

HOCKEY



IN HOCKEY, the girls of 1911 have showed the spirit and interest in all forms of athletics which is so characteristic of the class as a whole. Up to this year there has never been an interclass championship hockey series as in basketball, but now, thanks to the enthusiasm which the game is arousing among the girls, it bids fair to enjoy the popularity that it enjoys among the girls at many other colleges. As there is no record of the games played it is not possible to exactly state the victories of the girls, but suffice it to say, that, when there was any winning to be done, 1911 was always there at the finish and it took considerable skill and ability to get the upper hand of the old 1911 spirit when it became thoroughly aroused with its determination to "do or die."

Hare and Hound Chase

THE HARE and Hound Chase at Bates was instituted in 1906 by Dean Norris and Miss Britan. Since that time it has been held annually and is always looked forward to among the girls as an event of universal interest and enthusiasm. It has been the custom for the Senior girls of the Athletic Association to conduct the affair and with the memory of three previous Hare and Hound chases to urge them on, the girls of 1911 this year gladly undertook the work and most successfully carried it out.

On Thursday afternoon, September 29th, at three o'clock, one hundred and fifty enthusiastic girls assembled in front of Rand Hall, preparatory to starting. They were the hounds and with a great noise of horns and trumpets they set out on the trail of the hares who had started a short time before. There were four trails with the following leaders :—White trail, Miss Kincaid ; Yellow trail, Miss Stanhope: Blue trail, Miss Manter ; Red trail, Miss McKee. The trails stretched along most interesting parts of the country, through fields and woods, over hill and dale, many rich with hidden treasure in the shape of personal jokes and hits upon some unfortunate. After about an hour's run the four divisions came together at the top of a hill near the river where the hares were waiting for them. Bonfires which were already burning soon became the center of interest, for in addition to the good things brought from the dormitories, all roasted corn, bacon and potatoes in the ashes. As night began to come on and the fires die down, the girls formed a large circle and made the woods resound with college and class songs and cheers. Tired but happy they started for home, many making on the way a detour wide enough to take in Ross' Inn.

TUFTS

Gymnasium

VERY EARLY in our freshman year we blossomed out in gymnastics. After a few weeks of development we began to practice the wand drill. That drill was marvelous to us, and we never could understand why we did not get the prize. Probably because we could not see ourselves perform. However while the whole class was above the ordinary, we had some specialists. Our air spring artist was Bishop. He could do front or back springs anyhow and land anywhere. Then there was Clason. He was a kipper. He could kip on the parallels, on the high bar or on the floor. Pierce had one stunt he put on annually, a hand walk across the parallel bars. But greater still, in a class by himself, was our boneless contortionist, Sidney Cox. He was limber, yes, he could tie himself into a granny knot and crawl through a barrel hoop. Our class came back in the junior year and won the broad sword drill. This was our last effort as a class, and the victory was a fitting climax.

There is a side to Gym work, and the most important, of which we have not spoken. It is the constant, gradual development of our class, from the straggling line of awkward freshies who lined up at the command of the Coach four years ago, to the straighter, stronger and better developed seniors.

For this opportunity we are grateful to our College and our Coach. Gym work is over, boys. We may never get employment with a circus, but we have lost nothing by the hours we have spent in the old Gym.

The latent soul was waking in a youth,
Who, wondering, expectant, stood full in
The dawn of day. Across the sun-drenched vale
A shim'ring stretch, half-hid in mist,
Uprose the mountain tops, their rugged heights
Aglow with morning light. In eager awe
He gazed, then yielding to the spell that wrought
Within him, turned to cross the mist-bound plain
Whence never traveller returned.

On through the cooling morn and garish noon
He went, with face steadfast toward the sun
And lengthening shadows ever at his back,
Until he gained the low foot-hills where merged
The loftier heights, half-veiled in sapphire haze,
Still lingered wistfully to gaze a space
Back where the mingling lights and shadows crept
Caressingly athwart the plain, though dim
And blurred by those gray, trailing mists which Time
Had drawn between. Yet up the steeper paths,
Whereon the eager climbers toiled, he yearned
To seek beyond the utmost purple rim,
Above the flaming altar fires of
The West, bright angel forms seemed leaning; from
The dusk-dim uplands tender voices called
With sweetest promise fraught. More faintly glowed
The after-light, as in the Western sky
The moon, a pale, low-hanging crescent, slow
Was passing, and the heavens communing soft
With earth bent lower. In the hushed blue night
Of that mysterious far-vaulted dome
Gleamed clear the dainty fretwork of the still,
White, watching stars. No sound, no stirring, save
A brooding murmur of the winds, disturbed
The summer quiet, or as plaintive, far,
The whip-poor-will's sad note was trilled anon,
And in the air a drowsy fragrance hung,
The rich pine breath with dreamy odors of
A late wild rose and water lily blended.

Across the stilly mead there floated, soft,
A tender haunting note of song, as if
Some master spirit, kindred to the night,
Were pouring forth its soul in harmony
So perfect, true, that all the universe
Must bow in prayerful adoration, mute.
Again and once again the cadence sweet
Arose and fell, and the last lingering strain
Died away and all once more was still.

Dream-wrapt, the traveller tarried, now half loth
And hesitant to tread the way that led
'Midst darkness upwards from the sheltered Vale
Of Youth. From out the dark'ling shadows trooped
Strange Questionings and Doubts, grim phantom forms
That barred the way and mocked his morning faith
Was beauty but a snare to urge men on,
Reflecting hope a day—to vanish then
And leave the weary traveller bereft
Alike of sun and hope? So questioned he
At heart beset with dull misgivings: then
Full sweet unto his groping soul there came
A message quelling all his doubting pain,
Or was it that the chastened, strengthened self
Through mists the radiant arc of promise saw
And read the message that his spirit craved?

"O thou faint heart and sore oppressed with doubt,
Must thou, then, see to know? Is to believe
To see, alone? And wouldst thou thy life long
Be fain to go by sunny winding ways
Moss-garnished, but when daylight dies and night
Is come, then dost thou quail nor pray for strength?
There never evening fell but far surpassed
Its day, for in the sunset fires fair burns
God's promise of himself, and wrought therein
A prophecy of dawn to come. Night must Precede the day, but day shalt come at last,
The goal lies far beyond these mystic hills
And wouldst thou prove its promise true, then do
Thou trust; so, trusting, ask thy heart for power,
For as thy heart directs shalt thou attain."

CLASS RIDES

OUR CLASS RIDES! Things of bliss unalloyed for the Freshman, of chaperoned starchness for the Sophomore, of weighty responsibility for the Junior, but touched with sadness for the Senior. Oh that first famous class ride! We knew that there existed a mythical person who was wonderfully good to the Freshmen, a public benefactor, who adopted us soul and body on our arrival and never would cease to be our friend, Uncle Johnnie Stanton; and he, so the upper classmen informed us, would give us two days of Paradise free of charge, and it was even so. No Name Pond, and (but breathe it not to the generations following) Lake Auburn twice, and once unchaperoned.

As Sophomores, Lake Maranacook received us on a wet drizzly day, and such implicit faith was never before put in the Weather Man, for in the pouring rain we left the college, assured by our level-headed president that the rainy affliction was but for a moment, and even so, the sun smiled upon us ere we returned, though it was a watery one.

Trial and tribulation has ever been our lot. History repeated itself in difficulties our Junior year. After many attempts again Lake Maranacook opened her arms to us and the day was enjoyed, though the numbers were few.

Such have been our class rides, class affairs which will ever be remembered as playing a part in our College life which makes our memories of the years richer and of greater happiness.

HALLOWE'EN

SURELY IN this age of progressive social life there should be resounded through the halls of fame the report of the festal Hallowe'en parties of Bates 1911. Let us return then to the Jack O'Lantern fete of those remote days which subjected us to the appellation of "Verdant Freshmen." Knights of Pythias Hall in Auburn was our scene of merrymaking, and here the candles were constantly relighted whose magic power foretold our fate in marriage. In those primitive years the predictions were doubted, but now, in the light of what has gone before, it is unanimously agreed that this lesser Delphi must have been absolutely dependable. Of course there were apple stunts, promenading of various kinds, looking-glass photographs, etc., but what are these compared with prospects of matrimony?

We will not linger then on these minor amusements, but will proceed to the account of our last celebration, held our Sophomore year, in honor of sprites and hobgoblins. This indeed was the time that Hathorn Hall was fitted up with surprises of witchery throughout "the passing of the third floor back." The inspiration of the fortune tellers that night was undoubtedly due to the symphonius strains pouring from the class orchestra as it placidly ground away in its specified corner. As for fun, "Seven in, seven out" was very good, but that "punkin pie" eaten with tin(?) spoons was much better. Then there was that blood-curdling parade of spooks whose doleful lamentations went out in pity for "John Brown's Body." Ah well, Old Spooks, we will never hear your wail again, so here's a toast to you and yours and the future Hallowe'ens for 1911.

WHILE THE class of 1911 has been exemplary, as regards conduct, during the greater part of its sojourn in the "Garden of the Gods," still there have been a few outburts of enthusiasm and other pent-up energies which, although allowed to escape with good intentions, have created no little excitement about the premises of the college.

In order to line up to the traditions of the institution it became necessary for certain men of the class to procure ladders aud several barrels of paint with which to inscribe the grandstand. This job, while it appears very simple, requires much alertness, from the fact that, were the ladders to be removed by some noble Sophs, with the painters at work, the situation might be far from inviting.

During our Sophomore year several incidents of interest were enacted. Much might be said of the stunts performed by Freshmen while under pressure from a South Easterly direction. What could compare with the singing of Remmert, the high diving of Keer, the pole climbing of Jecusco, the washing of Carville with its necessary removal of supernumerous apparel, and last but not least those rib-twisting stories of Hibbard's?

A little later the faculty "in solemn conclave assembled" decided to hold a "College Tea." This provoked much applause and otherwise, which developed in some a craze for more paint. The result was that several glorious inscriptions were executed upon the fence of Garcelon Field, which depicted the feelings of the hour.

While the greater part of this testimony was devoted to written characters

1911

Good Bye Social Life

no small amount appeared in the forms of earthenware and domestic water-fowl.

While this excitement was waning, a few adventurous youths decided that Old Glory's exalted place on the flag staff should be occupied by a new emblem, bearing the inscription 1911, whereupon a bed was stripped of its sheets and after much labor the glaring ensign was made and flung to the breeze. None dared drag her to earth, and for some time she waved proudly o'er the halls of learning. Finally Washington ordered the Scavenger Department to haul down the rag and our brave banner bit the dust.

At this time our Freshmen were noted for their declamatory phenoms and it became necessary to administer a little aid in the shape of electric bells. These were placed beneath the faculty seats in the rear of the Chapel, and were operated from the basement via air shaft. The exercises had been in progress but a short time when the bells became interested and lent vigor to the occasion. Pandemonium reigned supreme. Goose, Freddie and Bessie May began a search for the incessant chimes. Ere long Goose was tearing the wall with an iron bar and Freddie was prying the floor, using Prof. Rob as a lever. After much ripping of spikes the difficulty was located and the switch-tenders given a furlough.

Our Scandinavian Fossil, known as Clavis, having become unable to locate his senses, it seemed wise to warn him of impending disaster. Several tons of hay, intermingled with text-books, note books and examination papers, were implanted in the box office of said instructor. Into his lecture room was brought the debris left by ten generations, in the basement of Hathorn Hall, which consisted of stoves, beds, bureaus, chairs, doors, and blinds, together with several more tons of hay, scented with sweet tincture of Juniper. Into this palace of joy strode the worthy gentleman the next morn, only to be driven forth by the plaudits of the throng.

BIRD WALKS

THERE IS something about an early morning tramp through fields and meadows and woods that is in itself worth while. Perhaps it is the joy of conscious power that comes from exerting the enormous amount of moral courage necessary to wrench our heads away from the pillow at half-past five in the morning. It may be merely an instinct calling us back to Nature, handed down from the time when our ancestors hopped from branch to branch, or chattered among themselves in the tropical forest. This need not concern us here. It is none the less true that we lose some of our restlessness, and absorb some of the cheery spirit of our little feathered friends that come and go with the change of the seasons, and then, to be led on these tramps by him whom we lovingly call, "Uncle Johnny;" to have each bird pointed out, and its colors, its characteristics, its song, fully explained; to come to understand each note as one struck from Nature's harp,—that is what the Freshman Bird-walks meant to us.

The heart of any stage heroine would have fluttered with satisfaction, to have been the object of half as many glasses as we focused upon those little gaudy-plumaged acquaintances of our Freshman year. Many of them did not mind it at all. That may be the difference between birds and stage heroines. Some of them were engaged so busily in their part of the twittering commotion, that we remained unnoticed. Yet, it is true that others acted as though firmly believing that "distance lends enchantment to the view."

Some ingenious student of nature made his system of ornithology very simple by dividing all birds into two classes,—Bluebirds and Sparrows. He then learned to distinguish only Bluebirds for all the rest must be Sparrows. It is safe to say that this would describe very accurately our own knowledge of the subject, before our Freshman year. The full-throated notes of the Song Sparrow, the shrill whistle of the Meadow Lark, the artless little trill of the Kinglet,—all have come to mean more to us.

In the days that are to come, when the measured cadence of the veery is borne through the twilight stillness to us, and the cares of the day become small and trivial, as we feel ourselves greater than our every day lives, then will there flood upon us grateful thoughts of "Uncle Johnny" and our Freshman Bird-walks.

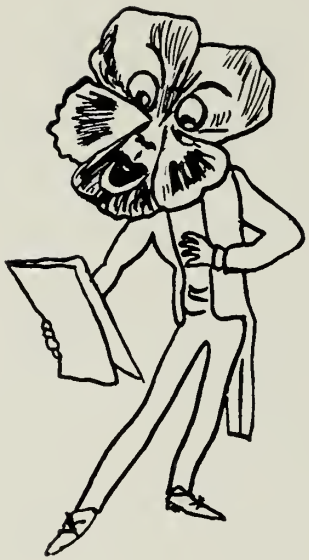
FEEDS

IN THIS, TOO, 1911 has attained and surpassed all former records. Where feeds have been concerned we have ever responded with great alacrity. This has been true from the pioneer days in Milliken and Whittier, when we feasted on good things, unmindful of the savage Sophomores howling without. The first Milliken House spread was so largely attended that only the gymnasium could accommodate the crowd. Then came the eventful spread in Whittier, when first the freshmen ventured to entertain there. At ten the young men found the doors had been locked, barred and tied by their friends of 1910, but bravely rose to the occasion by dropping eighteen feet from a window. After a party, which we held in the gymnasium later in the year, the Sophomores attempted to exercise on us a long neglected fire-extinguisher. But the Stern One who is ever on the alert for such vicious deeds found them out and they were,—not voluntarily withdrawn, but probationed, which was infinitely worse. On the occasion of our Freshman prize declamations, the member from Effingham told George Ross that he was the prize winner of the day,—which was an outrageous lie. George wished to share in the joys of the celebration and generously furnished several bricks of ice cream at reduced rates and in Rand Hall reception room Gramp, with a dozen of his chosen friends, celebrated. Another occasion of great rejoicing was the wedding of the Angel and I. Montgomery, which was voted the most brilliant of the season.

We lack space to tell of our spreads in detail. There have been parties over by the river, spreads in celebration of our frequent class victories, and rarely has a Saturday night passed without a jolly old 1911 feed. We have had feasts on Washington's Birthday, and Lincoln's, on Saint Patrick's Day, and on every other occasion when we could ring one in,—for in this we excel.



CULLEGE TEAS

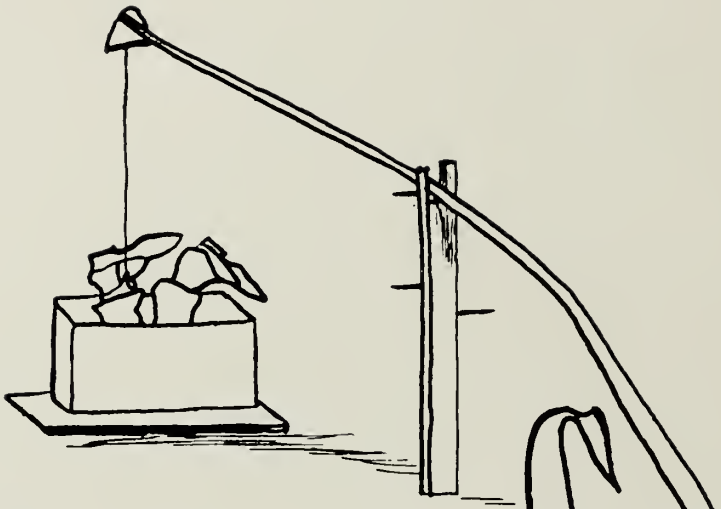
FOLLOWING the untimely death of our time-sacred H a l l o w - e ' e n parties, a great gap appeared in our social life. Society was a mockery to our shattered nerves; e v e n spreads failed to satisfy us. Long and diligently did the Powers That Be seek for a remedy. At length, the antidote was found, --formal "Cullege Teas."

In sooth the rumor had gone forth that our manners were in a shocking state of disintegration. But these fears for our knowledge of etiquette were soon allayed. Hardly had the invitations gone forth, when a volume of instructions appeared which could not fail to transform our uncouthness into truly Chesterfieldian grace.

Promptly at four o'clock, arrayed in the fairest of our purple and fine linen, we fared forth to taste the unknown joys of high society. Our hearts trembled, but bravely we ventured in, and were soon, tea-cup in hand, rehearsing our store of small talk to some other poor victim of "social training."

Still it wasn't quite so bad as we had feared,——and the "cullege tea" has become an established custom. Our manners have, we hope, improved in the lapse of years. To be sure, a few untoward accidents have occurred even recently. Spoons have unexpectedly become food for fishes; sugar-bowls have been converted into card-trays; and playing cards, kept merely as curios, no doubt, have presented themselves at precisely the wrong moment. But in spite of such disconcerting incidents we no longer look forward to these occasions with that horrible sense of dread; and that which we once regarded with frank amusement, has come to be a delightful college custom,—a happy memory of our college days.

JOKES AND NEAR JOKES



Pychology Class

An Agony in One Hour.

Scene: Philosophy Room

In Background: Peakes and a Hill(man)three inches below whose brow is a dense thicket.

In Foreground: A well curb. Br'er Rabbit [pet name Dr. Britan] discovered seated by the pump handle.

Time: First hour after Chapel.

Enter Class In Following Order: Chorus girls Brann, Jose, Crockett, Townsend, Chase(ing) the Rar-rah Boys, Matthews, Andrews, Stewart, Tebbetts, Pelletier, Morrison; the Twins Cow and Dox; a Bishop, a Taylor, a Cooper, a French Damoisell, a pseudo-Lord, a Chamberlin, and Preston who has a thinking part.

Meantime Br'er Rabbit takes attendance.

[Five minute bell sounds] Dunn comes slowly thru the door while Miss Stanhope enters under his right wing.

Br'er Rabbit, wagging his ears for attention, "What is the subject for today's lesson?" (Profound silence)

"Well! What did we learn last semester?"

Rar-rah Boys in unison: "That the table behind which our instructor sits is not a material object but an image of the mind."

(Enter Turner 10 min. late tobogganing down the steps)

General confusion while he crawls over legs of the vegetable and animal kingdom, to a seat.

Erskine, juggling with his chair, "I believe rocks feel, anyway; doesn't the Good Book say—

(He is interrupted by the entrance of Miss Manter—same business as Turner.)

Br'er Rabbit: "The subject for today is Happiness!

Howling of the mob, then general discussion of the topic.

Dunn drives home his point by the aid of two fingers. Argument heated on the question of the happiness of eating. Lord (who weighs 210 lbs., is 6 feet round, and almost half as tall) "Do people always think of how food nourishes the body?"

Br'er Rabbit: "No, some folks don't know anything about it."

Intermission while some other member of the Faculty comes in to speak to Doc Britan.

Cox (a sophist of the olden time) "Then, since you say there is no relation between cause and effect, if you shot a duck and the duck fell dead you would consider that the duck died of heart failure rather then from the effect of the shot."

Br'er Rabbit: "Well, I guess you would be able to see where the heart-failure went in and came out."

Dow (like his twin, only more so) "Now, Doctor, what I don't understand in Brother Cox's argument is this (and he beats around the bush for 15 minutes and concludes by saying) "I don't see any sense in it."

(Superior smile from Cox.)

Blake (suddenly opening his mouth) "Prof., do you mean to infer that it is impossible to have a complete abstraction of the personal identity of the individual ?"

Br'er Rabbit: "W-e-l-l, we have wandered from the topic somewhat"(general surprise.) "Can anyone tell me what happiness is ?"

Great hubbub in co-ed section. Loud whispers and giggles between Misses Jose and Chase.

Miss Jose: "Miss Chase and I think happiness is love for mathematics, and physics proves it."

Class sits stunned before this argument.

Chapel bell rings.

Exit class thru windows and doors.

This is the house that Pom built.

This is the Room that was in the House that Pom built.

This is the Tea that was held in the Room that was in the House that Pom built.

This is the Coffee that was served at the Tea that was held in the Room that was in the house that Pom built.

These are the Fish that drank the Coffee that was served at the Tea that was held in the Room that was in the house that Pom built.

This is the Spoon that went to the Fish that drank the Coffee that was served at the Tea that was held in the Room that was in the House that Pom built.

This is the Angel, with tragedy glance, as she reached for the Spoon that went to the Fishes that drank the Coffee that was served at the Tea that was held in the Room that was in the House that Pom built.

Quips

Prex in chapel harangues the college boys upon the danger of setting fires about the base of Mt. David. Two days later Prof. Chase has a bonfire, calls out the fire department, and nearly consumes his young and helpless offspring. "Let George do it!"

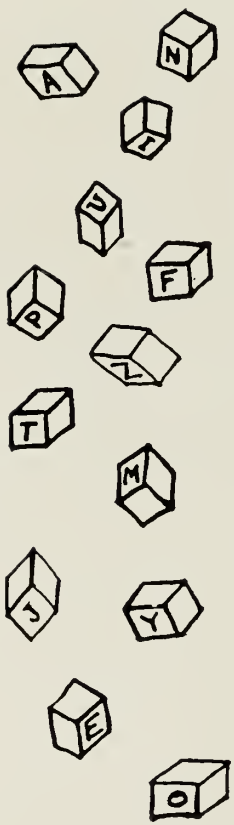
There's a young gent we call Robinson
Who's a regular son of a gun:
Could this youth have his way,
He'd paint everything Grey,
Tho from co-eds he'll usually run.

Prof. Ramsdell, after having cut an ellipse about Libbey Squatture, goes to the campus where he encounters Magna Carter in distress, because the Foster-child has stubbed her toe upon a fundamental principle and fallen into Britan's well. Foxy arrives upon the scene and peers down. "Ah!" says he, "terror piuquis is threatened with immediate dissolution."

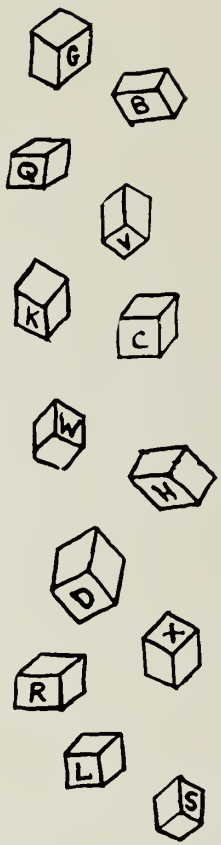
Then Willie speaks: "Myself and other eminent physicists would suggest an appliance with which to raise this body and hold it at rest." At once Coach Purington does a 2.20 down to Dr. Tubbs and returns with a Ferkin. Doc. Anthony honks up, bearing one of Freddie's smiles for a lever, and pats his chest and chants "Pretty sound judgment," two or three times. Prex grasps the top button of his coat, closes his eyes, and the Ferkin goes into the well. Is it clear, did they catch the point? Alas no, they are too late, for the five-minute bell has rung. There is but a supersaturated solution of goo which Pom studies under the microscope and finds therein a nucleus of avoirdupois tissue which he preserves in formalin, and expresses P. D. Q. to the West.

This space is reserved for Miss Parsons who will do a little song and dance entitled "Why is Arizona moonlight so much brighter than Maine moonlight" or "Has Earth Shine anything to do with it?"

ALPHABET



A is "our dear little Free Baptist doctor."
B is for Blue-law—with Elsie for proctor.
C is for Cox, philosophical wonder.
D is for Dooley, a-ringin' like thunder.
E is for Ethics, which Dow is the bird of.
F is for Fussing, to Bates men unheard of.
G is for Gilmer. Praise be, he's a goner;
H is for Hot-dog, on Lisbon Street corner!
I is for Ingersoll, quiet but charming.
J is for Jug, of proportions alarming.
K is for Kincaid, of Dignified Air.
L is for Lovely, who's losing his hair.
M is for Mony, and also for Mumps.
N is for Nichols. He gives us the jumps.
O is for Oldham, the Spofford Club foe.
P is for Prexie—he does love us so.
Q is for Quincy who ne'er rode a horse.
R Ramsdell. We like him, but drat the man's course;
S is for "Student"—the Honorable Jim it had.
T is for Turner, a fusser unlimited.
U is for Ugly. For instance, the Forum.
V is the Virtuous. Shun, but adore 'em.
W is Winsome, both Tasker and Mack.
X is for Xmas, of which there's no lack.
Y is for You—may you smile and be merry.
Z is for Zatch, and we're glad of it, very!



Selections from the "Hessiad," an epic written on the passing of the "Blue Law."

FACULTY STEIN SONG

If thotfulness pays (and I'm sure that it does),
Then it's bully in any relation.
It's good in athletics, it makes class-work buzz
But it's slickest in co-education.
Then we'll take all their Hallowe'en parties away
And their theatres and dances, to ease 'em.
But we'll boost the Y. M. and Y. W. C. A.
Because folks can't love 'em or squeeze 'em.

Chorus around the Parker Hall Piano

If you ever went a-strolling on a Sunday afternoon,
If you ever went to Vespers up till nine,
If you took her down to Ross', eating cold stuff with a spoon
You will understand this little song of mine.

Full Chorus

But the college rules are hard
And from such we are debarred,
For the same with Prexy's morals don't conform.
Why, the Dean declares it shocking
For to Sunday-go-a-walking,
Or to call on Sunday evening at New Dorm.

If you chance to have a yearning for to call her up by phone
Just recall my words in time and sling your hook.
There's one little Sunday Trinity you want to let alone
The receiver, the transmitter, and the book.

Full Chorus

Be it early, be it late,
Do not ring up seven-o-eight,
For it's horrid, bad, and wicked, past amends.
It is wrong, and what is tarter—
It's against the Magna Charta
To "hold communications with" your friends.
